Around the Globe!

It's exciting! Volunteers got the Treasure Hunt pocket-manga into three new languages—which span the globe—Asia, the Americas, and a Slavic nation—can you guess? Answer is on the back!

The Coolest! 😎 Treasure Hunt App progresses

Getting closer! Our fantastic team of volunteers from around the US meet up online, numerous times weekly, to chart new territory in mobilizing kids/youth to reach friends via gamified manga. This is absolutely blowing us away! Below is one of our weekly Google Meets.

The screenshot shows a Google Meet interface. On the left, a presentation window displays a manga page with a landscape and a character. The character's speech bubble reads: "HEY LOOK! HIKARI AND MANA! DO YOU THINK THEY CAME TO THE RIVER TOGETHER?!" Below the presentation, a chat window shows a message from Sam: "technologies that we have. this is a library that I downloaded that gives us like Different parameters and things like that for tension and friction duration. Min and Max values. But yeah, I'm actually like, I mentioned, you know, I'm working on Our own custom sequencer because this just isn't custom enough for us. But yeah, just as a proof of concept, very, very possible." The right side of the screen shows a grid of participants, including You, Sam, David Johnson, Irene Breck, Yorick van de Water, Caleb Wright, Joseph Meeko, Brittany Barry Art, and Connor Yeh. The bottom of the screen shows the Google Meet control bar with options like "Turn on microphone (ctrl + d)", "Turn off captions", and "Sam is presenting".

Answer: you got it—Korean, Portuguese, Russian! That means now we're @ 14 languages!

Launching The Future

March 11 is the Ten Year Anniversary of Japan's mega-disasters—we Look back with tears and with gratitude. March 12 is our Treasure Hunt Venture publication celebration in Tokyo—we look ahead with smiles and expectation!

Our big launch of the Treasure Hunt Project is beginning this Spring, in Japan and Albania. Andy plans to be in Albania in April, despite risky travel issues. Meanwhile, our first intern with Treasure Hunt arrived in Japan from Poland. Patricia (below, right) finally joined us when a window for travel restrictions lifted in December. She has been a huge help already with dozens of jobs!

We need your prayers as all this is ramping up—certain powers desperately want to prevent this...

The future is bright and we want to invest well in it. Let's unleash kids for awesomeness!

Having more fun than any missionary should be allowed to have!

On Tokyo Bay—we have tickets to the 2020 Olympics and are crossing our fingers that it will really happen this time!

Thanking God for you!!!
